1 The scurrying procession came at last to the big gate in the wall of the doctor's house. They could hear the splashing water and the singing of caged birds and the sweep of the long brooms on the flagstones. And they could smell the frying of good bacon from the doctor's house.

5 Kino took off his hat and stood waiting. Coyotito moaned a little in Juana's arms, and she spoke softly to him. The procession crowded close the better to see and hear.

After a moment the big gate opened a few inches. Kino could see the green coolness of the garden and little splashing fountain through the opening. The man who looked out at him was one of his own race. Kino spoke to him in the old language. "The little one- the first born- has been poisoned by the scorpion," Kino said. "He requires the skill of the healer."

10 The gate closed a little, and the servant refused to speak in the old language. "A little moment," he said. "I go to inform myself," and he closed the gate and slid the bolt home. The glaring sun threw the bunched shadows of the

Frequently Asked Questions

How long will this take students?

I generally estimate that high school students can complete 3-4 tasks in 35-45 minutes, but honestly, it's going to vary widely. You can get a better idea of how this will go if you test this out first, particularly if you can recruit a friend to play who isn't super tech savvy. What takes proficient adult readers 15-20 minutes usually takes students 35-45.

Can students work in groups?

Absolutely! Start all of the groups together on Task #1. After that, let them work at their own pace. If you set this up as stations, teams of 3-4 can "divide and conquer," and choose to work on tasks that suit them.

How can I adapt this for younger students?

Shorter tasks and more hints. :) For example, you'll edit the Reading List Match-Up to have more information at the beginning. The Close Reading Quiz will be shorter.

How can I make this more challenging?

You can add a Written Extension asking students to respond to one or more of the quotes. What does the quote mean to them? How does it help them imagine how they'll view the school year? You could ask them to write a paragraph individually or talk about this topic with their teams to set the tone for future collaboration and discussion.
